17 / 8 / 2016

1053 Candidacy applicants registered by the end of the second day of registration within a total of 193 different lists

19% of candidacy applicants are female

5% of candidacy applicants are Christian

2% of candidacy applicants are Circassians and Chechens

Two sisters registered on two different lists in Madaba

RASSED appreciates the decision by the IEC to fire the head of the Electoral Committee in Irbid

RASSED's observers monitored the second day of candidate registration. By the end of the second day 1053 candidacy applicants registered within 193 different lists, of which 197 were female, 50 were Christian (of whom two are women), and 21 were Circassians and Chechens (of whom one is a woman).

Monitoring results showed that the registration process went well and many list representatives returned to complete their registration because of incomplete documentation on the first day. New candidates were also added to many lists. No violations were submitted except for the third district of Irbid, where an unauthorized person entered the registration centre and used the committee's computer. RASSED's team immediately informed the IEC and the IEC immediately fired the head of that Election Committee. RASSED appreciates this quick action because it will strengthen voter confidence in the electoral process. RASSED also hopes that the IEC will continue along the same vein when dealing with violations to strengthen the rule of law.

RASSED noted another violation in one of the registration centers when the brother of a candidacy applicant tried to prevent him from registering, causing an argument between them. The head of the Election Committee for that district asked the police to intervene, but he allowed the man to complete the registration process.

In Madaba, RASSED team noted that two sisters registered to run for the election on two different lists. (Al-Mustaqbal List and Al-Tawfeeq Men Allah)
